As of March 2016, twelve Santa Clara County communities, including Cupertino, voted to join and form Silicon Valley Clean Energy (SVCE), a new local non-profit agency that will change the current electricity market by providing residents and businesses with a new choice. This new electricity provider, scheduled to host its inaugural meeting on April 13, will be entirely locally run and will buy power on the open market, encouraging the kind of competition that can result in more renewable energy sources at lower rates.

How will this affect my community & me?
Cupertino customers will be automatically enrolled with SVCE as their energy provider but can choose to opt-out and return to PG&E’s service at any time. Consumers will now have a choice of energy providers, in a sector previously dominated by one utility. Reducing our consumption of fossil fuels, and increasing the proportion of renewables on the energy grid is an easy, economical way to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, promote healthy communities and generate local renewable energy opportunities.

What’s next?
Each participating community has designated a representative to serve on the agency’s Board of Directors, to determine rates and procure electricity. The Silicon Valley Clean Energy Authority will host its first meeting on April 13 and service could begin as early as Winter 2016-17.

How can I get involved?
Outlined on SVCE’s (svcleanenergy.org) are extensive informational resources to help you learn more, along with a variety of ways for you to elevate your partnership with and support of SVCE. If you have additional questions about the program, please feel free to email info@svcleanenergy.org for more information.

To Have a Disaster Prepared City – Everyone Should Play a Part

When a disaster strikes, be it earthquake, flood, hazmat spill or other disaster, there is a team of trained volunteers who are prepared to help known as the Cupertino Citizen Corps (CCC). Supported by the first responders from the City, Santa Clara County Fire, Sheriffs, and other agencies, the CCC members go through extensive training to provide backup support when other resources are stretched thin. They also actively engage in offering training and outreach events to inform residents how to prepare for and survive after a major disaster. During an emergency CCC will staff resources called ARKs which are stationed around Cupertino and gather emergency information for the City. Emergency Operations Center (EOC), perform basic first aid, perform light search and rescue, provide neighborhood safety assessments, and keep the residents informed of emergency information provided by the city. Find out how to get involved at cupid.org/volunteerportal. What is it you want to be trained to help with? The CCC is comprised of the following volunteer members:

Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) – This core group is trained to help in all of the most common disaster situations. Training includes light search and rescue, fire safety, disaster medical operations, disaster psychology, hazardous materials identification, the incident command structure, and terrorism. In a disaster these people are right where the action is.

Cupertino Amateur Radio Emergency Service (CARES) – This group of amateur radio volunteers are the lifeblood of communication in a disaster when normal phone and internet service are down. They assist the city by providing professional emergency communications, increasing the city’s emergency response effectiveness, and speeding the recovery effort.

Medical Reserve Corps (MRC) – These volunteers promote health and safety to citizens throughout the year and are trained to function as a first aid medical unit in the City’s emergency plan. Various training classes are offered in emergency medical care, such as, basic medical evaluation, advanced first aid, CPR and defibrillator use, and medical evacuation.

Block Leaders – These volunteers help build a cohesive neighborhood and provide a point of contact in a neighborhood to the City Manager’s Office throughout the year and an informational source for neighborhood disaster assessment to the local ARK volunteers and thus to the city.

Neighborhood Watch – Volunteer leaders work with the City and the Sheriff’s Office to organize their neighborhood to be on the watch for suspicious persons and/or report criminal activity.

Give Back to Cupertino! - There are many ways to give back to the community. Many opportunities are available right here in Cupertino. Cupertino is a fantastic place to work and live. There is always a need for the assistance of more dedicated volunteers. All of us have some skill to become a contributor to our Cupertino team and give back to the community. Your service as a volunteer will be rewarding and educational and you will be helping to protect your family and friends. If the Cupertino Citizen Corps is not for you, other opportunities in the community are also available. Visit cupid.org/volunteerportal and select ‘Type of Task’ for more opportunities.

Featured in a 1902 edition of House and Garden is the following description of this large estate in Cupertino.

"Nestled close to the (western hills) in the uplands of Santa Clara Valley, is a vineyard of some seventy acres... the central gem in this unique natural setting is Beaulieu, the home of Mr. Charles Baldwin. A drive of palms leads to the grounds, which are laid out after 18th century models. On ascending two low flights of steps from the drive, one is not surprised to find a pavilion after the style which the French borrowed from the Italian."

The pavilion the writer spoke of is the "Petit Trianon." The owners, Charles and Ella Baldwin, bottled their own wine under the name of the estate. Baldwin had originally purchased the place in 1887 and called it Miraflores. In 1896 he married the beautiful and rich Ella Hobart, daughter of a Comstock silver tycoon. The estate was designed by noted architect, Willis Polk.

The folks around the West Side (Cupertino’s early name) called Charles Baldwin the "Admiral", as a title of respect. An elegant, stiff-backed polo player, he was actually the son of Rear-Admiral Charles H. Baldwin, who had once captained Commodore Vanderbilt’s yacht. The English-educated younger Charles had never served in the Navy, had never apparently done any work, until at the age of 26 he purchased the 70 acres in Cupertino and turned it into a productive vineyard. He installed a massive stone winery and underground cellars (still on the De Anza College grounds) and set out vines from the Bordeaux and Graves regions of France. His wines were sold in New York, London and Central America. He and his lovely wife had a French chauffeur and a French car that terrorized the local farmer’s horses with its chugging and belching - it was known locally as the “Yellow Devil” and it broke down more often than it ran.

The Baldwins were leaders of San Francisco’s "Fast Set". In addition to their estate in Cupertino where they gave extravagant parties, they had a country home in Burlingame. Shortly after the turn of the last century, Mrs. Baldwin developed tuberculosis and spent several years in a wheelchair. Because of her health, the Baldwins purchased property in Colorado, where they moved in 1908. Mrs. Baldwin eventually made a full recovery. After a time, they sold Beaulieu to their friend, Francis Carolan, a San Francisco millionaire socialite. The Carolans lived in Cupertino for several years, while their fabulous 92 room French chateau was being built in Burlingame. (Carolands was recently restored for $20 million and has a long and sometimes dark history)

Since 1965 the Baldwin’s former estate has become the site of De Anza College. Remnants of the gardens remain, the old winery building is part of the college and the lovely Petit Trianon houses the California History Center.

I wonder whatever happened to the “Yellow Devil?"

Environmental Recycling & Document Shredding is back! Saturday, April 16
Gather up your old confidential documents, items you’ve been meaning to donate, and that broken laptop in the closet and head to Environmental Recycling and Document Shredding Day on Saturday, April 16, 2016, 9 am – 1 pm in De Anza College’s Parking Lot A. For further information, contact Recology at 408.725.4020. Can’t make the event? You can still get rid of unwanted electronics the FREE e-waste drop off offered for Cupertino residents by Apple Computer (now at 1326 Kifer Road, Sunnyvale). See cupertino.org/environmental for more disposal details.

Does your fruit tree or vegetable garden produce more fruit or vegetables than your family can eat? Although you could compost this extra fresh produce, reducing the amount of greenhouse gas-emitting material in the landfills and bringing rich organic compost back to the community, a better option would be to rescue the food for those in need.

Food rescue has become a focused goal of waste reduction professionals and agencies in Santa Clara County. In 2015, the advisory group for the Recycling and Waste Reduction Commission (RWRC) of Santa Clara County conducted a study (see sccgov.org/sites/rwr/rwrc/Documents/FoodShiftFinalReport.pdf) to help chart a path to rescuing food for the hungry before it’s ever considered waste.

Next time you’re sorting through extra produce, consider donating it to our local leader in Food Rescue, West Valley Community Services on Vista Drive in Cupertino. For over 40 years West Valley Community Services (WVCS), a non-profit organization, has been dedicated to providing food, housing, and other services to Santa Clara County community members and families in need.

Though several Cupertino grocery stores and retailers donate non-perishable foods, breads, and pastries, WVCS is very much in need of fresh and healthy produce for their clients. Interested in making a food donation? Simply sort any extra fruits or vegetables into paper bags or clean cardboard boxes, drop your items off at 10104 Vista Drive during business hours, choose to receive a tax deduction or donate the items anonymously, and you are done! While you are there take the time to ask about other food products they need, volunteering (must be at least 16 years old) or even becoming a WVCS Board Member.

If you like to know more or someone you know would benefit from food or other support services from WVCS, please call 408.255.8033 or visit wvcommunityservices.org.

Do you know the right-of-way? Whether traveling by car, bike or foot, it is critical to your safety to know these basic rules. In fact, one of the most frequent causes of accidents is lack of understanding of the right-of-way laws. Here are some basics:

1. Pedestrians have the right-of-way when crossing a street at an intersection, but must yield if an approaching vehicle poses an immediate hazard.

2. When entering an intersection the first vehicle or bike to arrive has the right-of-way. If both enter the intersection at the same time, the vehicle on the right has the right-of-way, hence the term “right-of-way.” You can review the specific vehicle code here http://goo.gl/GYX1P7.

3. Parents should instruct children who walk or bike about right-of-way laws. For children and adults who have not received driver training, it is recommended that they walk their bike when crossing a street or making a left turn.

4. Regardless of right-of-way, bicyclists and walkers should establish eye contact whenever possible to increase the possibility that they’re seen by the driver.

5. Remember, safe is better than right. It’s important to know the rules, but never insist on the right-of-way. Use common sense in yielding to cars, bicyclists and pedestrians when necessary.

For additional bike and pedestrian safety information, visit walkbikecupertino.org.
