August 12 - Aladdin
Rated G
90 minutes
1992
Walt Disney Pictures
Directors: John Musker, Ron Clements

Robin Williams’ dizzying and hilarious voicing of the Genie is the main attraction of Aladdin, the third in the series of modern Disney animated movies that began with 1989’s The Little Mermaid and heralded a new age for the genre. After a sultan (Douglas Seale) gives his daughter, Jasmine (Linda Larkin), three days to find a husband, she escapes the palace and encounters the street-savvy urchin Aladdin (Scott Weinger), who charms his way into her heart. While the sultan’s Vizier, Jafar (Jonathan Freeman), weaves a spell so that he may marry Jasmine and become sultan himself, Aladdin discovers the Genie’s lamp in a cave, rubs it, and sets the mystical entity free, leading the Genie to pledge his undying loyalty to the dazzled youth. Aladdin begins his quest to defeat Jafar and win the hand of the princess, with the Genie’s help. Monsters, Disney’s trademark talking animals, and a flying carpet all figure into the ensuing adventures, but Williams’ Genie, who can change into anything or anybody, steals the show as he launches into one crazed monologue after another, impersonating figures from Ed Sullivan to Elvis Presley.

August 19 - Goosebumps
Rated PG
103 minutes
2015
Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc.
Director: Rob Letterman

Jack Black stars as acclaimed Goosebumps writer R.L. Stine in this feature-film adaptation of the popular YA book series. A teenager named Zach (Dylan Minnette) reluctantly moves from New York City to the quiet town of Madison, DE, where he quickly realizes that his reclusive new neighbor is in fact the horror author of the Goosebumps series. Zach learns Stine’s identity when he is drawn to the writer’s daughter Hannah (Odeya Rush), but soon discovers the dangerous secret inside their home – the creatures from Stine’s famous stories are real, and are kept locked away inside their original manuscripts. After an accident frees the monsters, Zach, Hannah, and their nerdy pal Champ (Ryan Lee) must work together with Stine to save their town from destruction. Rob Letterman directed this family-friendly adventure. Screenplay by Darren Lemke; screen story by Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski.

Shakespeare in the Park

Written by William Shakespeare
July 23, 24, 29, 30, 31 and August 5, 6, 7
7:30 pm, Memorial Park Amphitheater

“It is required you do awake your faith.”

Luminous and heartbreaking, tragic and gloriously funny, The Winter’s Tale is the crowning achievement of Shakespeare’s late career, a magical tale that swoops across continents, generations, and genres to its bittersweet and beautiful conclusion. King Leontes of Sicilia trusts his own paranoid beliefs against all evidence to the contrary, plunging his kingdom into a chain of tragedies – culminating in Shakespeare’s most famous stage direction “Exit pursued by a Bear.” But in the play’s darkest hour, a baby girl survives to grow up in the happy kingdom of Bohemia, ignorant of her noble past. Thanks to the wisdom of his loyal servant Paulina, Leontes learns that not all losses can be reversed, but redemption is possible.

Music, dance, and a trio of delightful clowns all make this romance a treat for the whole family.

Bring a picnic, a blanket, and the whole family to enjoy FREE professional theatre at Cupertino’s Memorial Park Amphitheatre. Don’t miss our Green Show, a half hour before showtime – a great introduction to the play for all ages! “

How to Call for Help in an Emergency

The best time to prepare for an emergency is before it happens. Prepare yourself by thinking about what information you will need to know and provide. Make a list of critical information to have on hand for you and your children.

Who to Call - List of emergency medical services such as ‘911’ or Santa Clara County Dispatch at 408.299.3233, poison control center 800.222.1222, your hospital emergency room, your doctors, your personal emergency contacts (cell and home numbers), and your pharmacy. Either program those numbers in your phone and cell phone or keep the list posted near the phone.

Critical Information - List any known allergies (especially to any medication), medical conditions, medications and medical insurance information. Also, include your address (including cross-streets) and phone numbers. You would be surprised how many people forget this simple information in a panic situation. List any pets that first responders should be made aware of and if they are or could be vicious. If you have a home alarm or entry codes, how to deactivate or unlock them if required.

Nature of Emergency – Here you want to be as specific as possible to help the first responders. For instance, just saying “Send someone quick” does not divulge any information on who to send and what they must prepare for. Saying, “My father is having a heart attack, grabbing his chest and has stopped breathing. My wife has started performing basic CPR a few minutes ago.” This says a lot about what has happened and what the situation is now. The operator will know to send an emergency medical response team. Do not hang up unless instructed to do so. The operator may be able to provide critical life saving tips for you to help the victim until the emergency response team arrives.

Cell Phones and Internet Phones in an Emergency – The operator may not be able to locate where you are in an emergency so be very specific on your location. Register your cell phones and home internet-based phones with the local 911 service if they do not have ‘Enhanced 911 service’. Program ‘ICE’-In Case of Emergency into your cell phone. The phone number should be a trusted relative or friend who can give important medical information to the emergency service personnel if you are unable to speak for yourself. EMS are trained to look for the “ICE” in your cellphone if needed.

Know Where You Are – It may seem silly, but in an emergency it is important to always know exactly where you are so emergency responders can locate you in a disaster. Always give the exact address of the emergency, including the room or area, (such as “the upstairs bedroom” or “the backyard”). They can’t help you if they can’t find you! Some cell phone apps, have an emergency SMS feature to send responders and friends your exact GPS location, the nature of the problem, and other important medical information in a disaster, such as a major earthquake.

Medical Alert Systems – For elderly and disabled people who may not be able to get to a phone during an emergency there are a host of Medical Alert Systems on the market. If you or your loved ones need one, do your research, select the appropriate device, and get one. It could save their life.

Reverse 911 - There may be times when Santa Clara County Emergency Services may want to contact you during an emergency or disaster. They have a system to automatically call the people in the disaster area to give them important information about the situation. To be included in this service, you can register your home and cell phone numbers by going online to www.AlertSCC.com. In Cupertino you should also sign-up for Cupertino Alert System at Cupertino.org/cas to get local notifications on mobile devices and install Ready 95014 apps on your smart phone or tablet to keep you informed. Don’t wait until an emergency happens before you act!

If you do only one thing to prepare this month: Get your emergency list ready and post it by the phone. The life it saves may be your own.
Summer is here. Many in Santa Clara Valley will hop in their cars on long, hot days, hoping to beat the worst of the traffic on Highway 17, trying to get to cooler shores on the coast. Easy, right? On a good day, it takes maybe 40 minutes average driving time - from San Jose to Santa Cruz.

A look at the Santa Cruz Mountains from an earlier time painted a very different picture to someone looking for land to settle on and build their future.

An early explorer-priest wrote, "The adjacent mountains were wild and rugged, the canyons deep and dark with the shadows of the forest. Coyotes broke the stillness with their dismal howls and herds of deer slaked their thirst in the clear waters of the San Lorenzo (river). Grizzly bears were numerous, prowling about in herds, like hogs on a farm."

Lyman Burrell, who came with his family to the mountains in 1853, wrote, "It seemed like a vast, solitary wilderness - no houses, no roads. I knew that bears and lions dwelt here, but I feared them not."

(Burrell would change his opinion of bears later on.)

Probably the most famous local encounter between grizzly and man happened to Mountain Charley McKiernan, whose picture accompanies this column. McKiernan wore his hat very low on his head to cover scars, after a bear tore much of his forehead away and a doctor hammered a silver dollar into a plate to cover the hole and sewed a flap of skin over it to hold it in place. He lived to tell his tale to many a wide-eyed child.

McKiernan's bear encounter was not the only one in the mountains. A huge Frenchman, "with a mighty barrel chest, enormous biceps and ham-like fists" fought a bear without benefit of a weapon. While out hunting, he came upon a grizzly, and fired his rifle, but only wounded the beast in the shoulder. The bear immediately charged the Frenchman who tried to club it with his gun but the bear knocked it out of his hand and bit down on his left wrist, grabbing his left arm with both of its' paws. With his free right hand, the Frenchman began to lug the bear in the chest with all his might. The bear hung onto his left arm, biting and clawing. Finally the bear had suffered enough blows and lumbered off into the woods. Friends found the Frenchman unconscious, with blood streaming from his arm. He lost his left arm, but survived. The bear was found the next day - dead from internal injuries caused by the Frenchman's mighty blows.

And Lyman Burrell, who said he didn't fear bears or lions? After he made that statement, one day he and a friend were building a fence to hold some pigs they owned. The pigs started making strange noises. Burrell took his axe and went down a trail to investigate. To his surprise, he saw a mother bear and her cub running down the trail straight at him. With only his axe in hand Burrell decided his best move would be to run as fast as he could towards the new fence. In 1862 he wrote,

"I turned back and ran as fast as possible, with the bear and cub behind me. I...stumbled and fell flat on the ground...the old bear instantly took one of my limbs between her jaws. She gave me one good, strong bite." Burrell was extremely fortunate in that the bear decided to keep going and left him lying on the trail. Burrell's wife managed to patch up his leg and after a six month convalescence, he was able to resume work. He remarked, "Until this happened, I had never felt any fear of wild animals; but after this, I never had the least desire to meet a bear."

James V. McKiernan (Mt. Charley's son) told a mountain neighbor that when the early pioneers hunted bear they did so in the following manner: "always the grizzly was treated with respect and the best shot was a downhill, shot, with a fast horse for a quick getaway, if necessary."

The Burrells inadvertently built their first cabin (in 1853) in the mountains next to a bear path. Every morning they would awaken to find new tracks around the cabin, though the bears never bothered them while they were in the house. Once Lyman Burrell decided to put up a large gate to cut off the path. One night a bear came up the path and encountered the gate. Rather than going around and jumping the low fence, the bear "took hold of the gate, wrenched it from it's' fastenings and laid it on the ground – thinking no doubt that he was lord of the forest and always should be."

Mountain lions were always a constant threat and would stop at nothing to get a pioneer's goat, sheep, pig or calf. Once a mountain lion jumped a fence at Burrell's ranch, killed a calf and jumped the fence again, carrying the dead animal. Upon this discovery, Lyman put a full grown Spanish cow inside the pen on the following night, thinking the lion would be back for another meal. He was right! The lion did come back and this time met with more than it's match. The cow gored the lion, pushing it clear through the fence, breaking several planks. The Burrells never again had any trouble with lions getting calves in that pen.

Even with all the hard work and danger associated with this wilderness, the pioneers came; building ranches, stores, post offices, schools, churches, wineries, packing sheds and lumber mills. There were even resorts with mineral springs for rest and relaxation in the mountains. And of course, railroads eventually tunneled into the Santa Cruz Mountains and the mighty redwoods were felled by the mile - many to rebuild San Francisco, after the 1906 earthquake.

Cupertino’s Annual Citywide Garage Sale is Around the Corner

Got unwanted goods cluttering your home? Looking for unique treasures and deals? Instead of tossing goods in the trash or shopping for new household items, reduce your environmental impact by participating in Cupertino’s Annual Citywide Garage Sale on September 17 & 18!

At this event, participating residents and community organizations host garage sales at their homes and specified private locations throughout Cupertino. Residents and community organizations wishing to sell items are invited to register on or after August 8 online at cupertino.org/garagesale or by calling 408.777.3354. Free advertising and a garage sale “How-to” kit will be provided online, or can be mailed if requested by phone. Participants manage their own sales and keep all profits. There is no fee to participate. The last day to register if you want to be listed on the City’s garage sale map is September 2.

Don’t have anything to sell? Go for a walk and do some treasure hunting of your own – buying used instead of new saves resources and money! Questions? Email environmental@cupertino.org for more information.

Thank you, Cupertino Creek Cleanup Volunteers!

Seventy volunteers and City staff rolled up their sleeves and collected an estimated 285 pounds of litter from Calabazas Creek as part of National River Cleanup Day on May 21. This semiannual event prevents litter from polluting our creeks and ensures a cleaner Cupertino for all residents. After all the litter was collected by volunteers, staff sorted recyclables, organics, and landfill items. Interesting items collected include a fire extinguisher, fireworks, five soccer balls, a mop head, and over 100 pounds of scrap metal.

This community creek cleanup boasted a few successes beyond our incredible volunteer turnout. In previous years, volunteers collected several hundreds of cigarettes from the creek, but this year only a handful of this toxic litter item was found. Prior to the adoption of our plastic bag ban, volunteers collected over 30 bags of plastic grocery bags from the creek, but this time only about 3 were collected.

Stay tuned for our next community creek cleanup on September 17, 2016. Email environmental@cupertino.org for more information.
Welcome our New Green Businesses!

This year, GreenBiz Cupertino has welcomed two unique environmental leaders to our Certified Green Business community. These businesses achieved certification through the Bay Area Green Business Program, a certification program which distinguishes organizations that protect, sustain and preserve the environment.

De Anza College: De Anza College is the first community college to be certified as a Bay Area Green Business. The team of environmental studies students and college operations staff spearheading this project assessed over 60 buildings and implemented over a hundred measures throughout the campus. A few of the actions De Anza took to achieve certification include using weather-adjusted irrigation systems, installing water-efficient showerheads and faucet aerators throughout the campus, applying compost to athletic fields instead of chemical fertilizers, and installing “No Dumping, Drains to the Bay” labels on all storm drains on campus. Even prior to the certification process, De Anza College had a long legacy of environmental leadership, proven by their several LEED-designated buildings and highly acclaimed Environmental Studies Department.

Harini Krishnapuram DDS: Another leader to join our GreenBiz ranks is Cupertino’s first certified dental office, Harini Krishnapuram DDS. Dr. Krishnapuram runs her office almost entirely paperless and does not use amalgam fillings, which contain toxic mercury vapor, in her practice. Other green actions taken to achieve certification include switching to low toxic cleaning products, installing low-flow faucet aerators, purchasing recycled content paper products, and installing “No Dumping, Drains to the Bay” labels in the parking lot.

Help protect your local environment by supporting our certified green businesses that have committed to conserving resources and preventing pollution. To find a full list of certified green businesses or learn more about our GreenBiz Cupertino, visit cupertino.org/greenbiz or email sustainability@cupertino.org.

Cupertino Poet Laureate Program Changes Hands

Amanda Williamsen Relocating; Ann Muto to Lead

The Cupertino Poet Laureate program, under the auspices of the Recreation and Community Services Department, will have a change in leadership effective July 1, 2016. Amanda Williamsen, current Poet Laureate will be relocating to Seattle, WA; Ann Muto, also a final candidate in the previous search, will assume the Poet Laureate role.

Amanda Williamsen was to have served her two-year term through 2017. Her husband’s career is taking this family of four “on our next adventure,” according to Williamsen. Ann Muto, with agreement from the City of Cupertino Recreation and Community Services Department, and the City Library Commission, will fulfill the role from July 1 through December 31, 2017.

Muto comes to this community role with experience as a poet, teacher and avid volunteer. She has a BA in Social Sciences from Berkeley, and a credential in Elementary Education, and a masters in Administration and Higher Education from San Jose State. Her book, Open Passage, was published by the City of Cupertino Library. Muto has recently participated in the seven Poetry Memoir classes held by Williamsen.

Williamson’s final event will be to conduct the session June 3 at 7 pm in the Euphrat Gallery at De Anza College. This event is a poetry reading with Maw Shein Win of Berkeley, author of Ruins of a Glittering Palace, and Tanu Wakefield, the new Poet Laureate of Belmont. All are welcome; there is no charge.

On June 15, the Cupertino Rotary Club will celebrate the winners of its first annual poetry contest for high school and junior high school students. Irmgard Lafrentz, Rotary Youth Services committee member, created the contest with input from Amanda Williamsen. Guests are welcome. Please email info@cupertinorotary.org.

The Cupertino Poet Laureate program is sponsored by the City of Cupertino, the Cupertino Library Commission, the Cupertino Library Foundation and The Friends of the Cupertino Library.

Kathy Stakey, president of The Friends of the Cupertino Library commented: “Amanda has done a magnificent job this year as Cupertino Poet Laureate. Under the circumstances, I am elated to hear of the decision to seat Ann Muto as our Cupertino Poet Laureate. I am familiar with her work and her dedication to poetry. I know she is highly qualified to make us proud.”

Biking Safety Tip #5
(Taking the lane)

When there is no bike lane, drivers will commonly see a yellow caution sign telling them to "Share the Road" with cyclists. This means that it is expected that the cyclist will occupy the lane thereby impeding traffic. Under the vehicle code "slower traffic is required to keep right," so the cyclist is required to move to the right and allow traffic to pass as soon as the cyclist determines that cars can pass him/her safely. In any case, if there are five cars behind a cyclist, the cyclist must pull off to the right side of the road and get off the bike in order to allow traffic to pass. If drivers are honking or otherwise displaying their anger at the cyclist, the cyclist should get off the bike and allow traffic to pass. In a conflict with two tons of steel, the cyclist can only lose.

Ann Muto, Cupertino Poet Laureate as of July 1, has scheduled six sessions to build on the Poetry Memoir classes begun by former Poet Laureate Amanda Williamsen.

Sessions are open to those 18 and older, and there is no charge to attend. The dates for the Poetry Memoir Group sessions for fall 2016 from 10:45 am to 12:15 pm in the Story Room at the Library are:
• Sept. 7 and 21
• Oct. 5 and 19
• Nov. 2 and 16

Topics addressed will include characters and settings for participants’ memoir poems, recurring subjects, the poet’s place in a larger group or historical setting, as well as a bookmaking experience. Each session will provide time to write from given prompts, or the challenge of a new poetic form, as well as time to listen to one another in small groups.
