Hazard Materials in the Home

Do you know that there are many common household chemicals in the home which can kill or injure you or your family? In fact on average your household contains between 3 to 10 gallons of hazardous materials. Do you have cleaners, bleach, oil, paints, thinners, batteries, medicines, pesticides in your home? All of them are classified as hazardous materials and must be treated with special care. There are four basic types of hazardous materials: corrosive, ignitable, reactive, and toxic. Each requires their own level of cautions and care when using, storing and disposal.

• Common household corrosive materials are metal, drain and rust cleaners with an acid ingredient, paint thinners or removers and, oven cleaner which lye (sodium hydroxide). Never put in an unsafe container which will melt and use rubber gloves and eye protection as most of these materials will irritate skin and eyes.

• Ignitable materials include gasoline, kerosene, diesel fuel, ammunition, matches, paint thinner and items containing alcohol. Most of these materials contain a warning on the container like “do not store near heat” or “keep in a cool dry place”. These types of materials have a high fire danger and may be highly explosive as well. Use only in well ventilated areas away from heat sources.

• Reactive materials are those which when exposed to air, water, or another chemical may explode or outgas toxic fumes. For example, when bleach and ammonia is mixed it creates a toxic gas.

• Toxic materials are a class where they may cause serious health problems or death if ingested, absorbed into the skin, or inhaled through breathing in sufficient quantities. Extreme caution should be used with these chemicals and following instructions carefully is a must. Protective gear is advised if there is danger of exposure to skin, eyes, or through breathing. Closets, cupboards and garages of toxic materials like air fresheners, carpet deodorizers, medicines, vitamins, mothballs, oven cleaners, insecticides, paint thinners. Be sure to keep Poison Control number, (1.800.764.7661) handy and program it in your cell phone and home phone if possible.

Notice that some chemicals fall into more than one class of hazardous materials and the list is endless. If you are not sure if a material is hazardous, just to be safe, assume it is! Always store hazardous materials in their original container unless it is mixed for use and then label the container well with a permanent marker. Never use soft drink or similar containers for hazardous materials as a child may mistake it for safe to drink. Dispose of all unused or waste hazardous chemicals properly. In Cupertino, there are all sorts of ways to get rid of hazardous waste for free. See the Cupertino website at www.cupertino.org/hws

Several weeks ago I saw a fully loaded logging truck rumble down out of the mountains, through downtown Saratoga. A few days later, observed another one coming down De Anza Blvd. in Cupertino. Hadn’t seen a logging truck in these parts for quite awhile and they looked so out of time and place - passing restaurants and shops and high tech Apple computer buildings. Made me curious. A fellow over at the Saratoga museum remarked, “Oh yeah, it's logging season”. Didn’t know we had a “logging season”. In our valley of high-rise concrete, steel and glass, watching redwood logs go by on a huge truck bed is an odd picture... wouldn’t feel odd in Ukiah or maybe Scotia but those places aren’t hotbeds of computer culture. Yet here we are - ringed on the west with the Santa Cruz mountains - where logging is still a commercial enterprise.

Got some local history books on logging and went back in time to the early and mid-1800’s when the timber harvesting industry was right up there with mining for gold in California. Those jobs are two of the most dangerous occupations on record. It’s hard for us to imagine how difficult logging was in the old days. It would take pages to explain all that went into simply felling a single tree, stripping the branches, sawing the giant tree into 8, 10, 12 ft. etc. lengths and then dragging the huge sections over a 7 foot pit. One man stood on top of the tree section and one man stood in the pit, whip-sawing a blade many feet in length - up and down, up and down until a board was cut. Backbreaking work. And that was just for the cutting of one board. If sawmills were not at too great a distance, teams of oxen were used to drag the logs down to the nearest river to float in enormous quantities down to the mill – there were men who rode the logs to try keep them from jamming up – if a man fell, likely he would be crushed.

Since the trees grew in canyons, ravines, on steep mountains, that increased the dangers in felling them and getting them out of the forest. Most of the men who worked in lumber camps were bachelors; loners, who in the earliest days were bachelors, or perhaps young men. There were a few places in the U.S. - like Seattle – that have an actual street known as "Skid Road" which recalls the logging industry in that area. Over the years, mechanization changed the timber industry - the introduction of the “donkey engine” eventually eliminated the need for oxen and then came tractors, trucks and other heavy equipment. Helicopters are now often used to bring logs out and load them on trucks.

Environmentalists watch the timber industry closely and there is always tension between the two groups. Early photographs of the Santa Cruz mountains shows the evidences of clear-cutting - which is prohibited by law in modern times. When we look at photographs of homes, barns, hotels, public buildings, bridges, train trestles from the old days - all made out of wood - entire cities and towns - all built with wood - it boggles the mind to think of the millions and millions of board feet of lumber that enabled it all...and the hard and dangerous lives of the men who worked to give us the wood to build everything.

One of the most interesting companies in the timber industry is Pacific Lumber Co. in Scotia, Northern Calif. I went on their facility tour in the early 1980’s when the de-barking chamber was still open for viewing to the public. Their story is on-line and tells the tale of the family who started the company in 1863, built a company town for their employees, changed their logging practices to promote sustainable growth of the redwoods and responsible timber harvesting. They ran a model company for decades until a dispute over clear-cutting sparked massive protests for years - it is a story well worth reading.

Need to Drain Your Pool?
Steps must be taken to protect the creeks when draining pools and spas. If pool water is pumped directly into the street or gutter, it will flow into a storm drain and into one of Cupertino’s beautiful creeks. Chlorine and pool chemicals in pool water are a threat to aquatic life in the creeks – so draining into the gutter is prohibited by City ordinance. Pool water must be discharged to landscaping or pumped into a sanitary sewer “clean-out.” Before a pool is drained to a sanitary cleanout, the pool owner should call the Cupertino Sanitary District at 408.253.7071. District staff can provide assistance in finding the home’s “clean-out” and can answer questions about the appropriate flow rate, technique, and the right time of day to drain a pool. To obtain more guidance for the pool draining process, visit www.OurWaterOurWorld.org or call the City at 408.777.3354.

Reusable Bag Ordinance at a Glance
The City of Cupertino adopted a reusable bag ordinance to reduce waste, promote reusable bags and minimize the amount of harmful litter in the creeks and San Francisco Bay.

Why do we need this? Educating the public about the litter problem over the last 10 years and hosting volunteer creek cleanups has not achieved the goal of reducing plastic shopping bag litter in our creeks, bay and ocean.

When will it happen? On October 1, 2013 stores in Cupertino will be required to charge $0.10 for a recycled paper bag and they will not be allowed to give out free thin plastic carry out bags.

How can I avoid the bag fee? Shoppers may avoid paying the $0.10 per bag charge by using their own reusable bags or no bag at all.

What if I have more questions? Please contact City of Cupertino staff directly if you have any questions or concerns about the new City code.

Email environmental@cupertino.org or call 408.777.3354.

Where to get reusable bags? Many supermarkets and stores sell reusable bags. You may collect free bags at fairs and events or drop by City Hall for a free reusable Chico bag. Visit www.cupertino.org/reusebags to view the City of Cupertino Reusable Bag Ordinance PSA.

Global Elegance 2013 Annual Fundraising Dinner supports Humanitarian projects

The Rotary Club of Cupertino will host its 17th annual Global Elegance dinner on Saturday, September 7 to raise funds for its World Community Service projects. The price is $175 per person of which $100 is tax deductible. The annual projects Cupertino Rotary undertakes make a measurable difference in the lives of people in need around the globe.

“We believe we have found a significant benefit in partnering,” says Orrin Mahoney, Cupertino Rotarian and mayor of Cupertino. “Through the global granting process of Rotary International, we plus the funds we donate to the Rotary Foundation. These designated funds return in part to our Club.
