Train for the Cupertino Citizen Corps

When a disaster strikes, be it earthquake, flood, hazmat spill or other disaster, there is a team of trained volunteers who are prepared to help, known as the Cupertino Citizen Corps (CCC). Supported by the City, Santa Clara County (SCC) Fire, SCC Sheriffs, and other agencies, the CCC members go through extensive training to provide additional help when resources are stretched thin. They also actively engage in offering training and outreach events to inform residents how to prepare for and survive after a major disaster. The Citizen Corps is prepared to staff resources called ARKs, which are stationed around Cupertino, and gather emergency information for the City Emergency Operations Center (EOC), perform basic first aid, perform light search and rescue, provide neighborhood safety assessments, and keep the residents informed of emergency information provided by the city. The CCC is comprised of the following volunteer members. Find out more at www.cupertino.org/emergency

Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) – This core group is trained to help in all of the most common disaster situations. Training includes light search and rescue, fire safety, disaster medical operations, disaster psychology, hazardous materials identification, the incident command structure, and terrorism.

Cupertino Amateur Radio Emergency Service (CARES) – A group of amateur radio volunteers whose mission is to assist the city by providing professional emergency communications, increasing the city’s emergency response effectiveness, and speeding the recovery effort.

Medical Reserve Corps (MRC) – These medical volunteers promote health safety to citizens throughout the year and function as a specialized medical unit in the City’s emergency response plan. Various levels of training offer disaster medical care from basic first aid to emergency medical procedures.

Disaster Animal Rescue Team (DART) – This group is activated when the City experiences an earthquake or other emergency that causes animals to need care and shelter in the absence of their owners.

Block Leaders – Provide a point of contact in a neighborhood to the City throughout the year and serve as informational source for neighborhood disaster assessment to the local ARK volunteers and thus to the City.

Neighborhood Watch – Volunteer leaders work with the Sheriff’s Office to organize their neighborhood to be on the watch for suspicious activity.

Give Back to Cupertino! – Cupertino is a fantastic place to work and live. There is always a need for the assistance of more dedicated volunteers. All of us have some skill to become a contributor to our Cupertino team and give back to the community. Your service as a volunteer will be rewarding and educational and you will be helping to protect your family and friends. If this is not for you, other opportunities in the community are also available. Contact us at the Cupertino Office of Emergency Services (OES) at 408.777.3335, or email OES@cupertino.org for more information.

This is an intensive training session by the Santa Clara County Fire Department on preparedness and helping others during a disaster. The course is offered four times a year and you will have one year to makeup any missed sessions for graduation. You may attend the final exercise once all six sessions have been completed. We encourage all Cupertino residents to attend this worthwhile training. The next class runs April 29, 30 and May 1, 6, 7, 8 from 6 – 9 pm with the final exercise on May 10, 10 am – 1 pm. If you do only one thing to prepare this month: Think about what you can do to volunteer somewhere in Cupertino and act to find out more.

Simply Safe is a monthly article to inform the community about emergency preparedness, training schedules and volunteer opportunities.
Up in the Cupertino foothills, at the end of Prospect Road, is the rambling house that once belonged to crusading newspaper editor, Fremont Older. Much has been written about Fremont Older, but less well-known is the story of his wife, Cora Baggerly Older.

Cora was born in Clyde, New York, on October 24, 1874 and came to California in 1892. At a play in Sacramento, Cora met Fremont Older, a reporter on the local paper. Not long after, they married and he began his career as editor of the San Francisco Bulletin. San Francisco’s city government was pretty corrupt in those days and Cora wrote numerous articles and reviews reflecting a socialist type of mind that appeared in her husband’s newspaper.

After the couple moved to their country home, “Woodhills” (at the end of Prospect Road), Cora became increasingly fascinated by the romance of early California. She had this in common with old friend, James Phelan, who had recently built Villa Montalvo just a few miles away. Life in and around the California missions during the Spanish period would be a primary subject of Cora’s writings in the following years.

One time Fremont and Cora’s car broke down near San Juan Bautista and they met the local priest, Father Closa. The Olders suggested that the local citizens put on a fiesta to raise funds for the mission. It was done and the fiesta ran for two days, including a rodeo. It was a grand occasion with great success and netted $4,000 for the restoration of San Juan Bautista mission.

Cora began researching the early history of San Jose and Santa Clara County. In 1916 she wrote for the San Jose News, a series of articles under the heading, “When San Jose Was Young.” Her name never appeared on any of these pieces. It may have been that Cora chose anonymity because her name was associated with a rival Bay Area newspaper (the S.F. Bulletin) or because her brother, Hiland “Hi” Baggerly was managing editor of the News.

Cora understood that there were still people living in Santa Clara County who could remember San Jose from the Mexican period and her diaries of that time document the excitement she felt in locating them and getting their stories. She tracked down and interviewed relatives of the bandit, Tiburcio Vasquez, as well as survivors of the ill-fated Donner Party. She wrote numerous articles about local Native Americans. In one article she wrote, “One of the race tragedies is the disappearance of the California Indian under the Spanish and American conquests. Occasional hunters meet a survivor of the old tribes living alone in the mountains, but for the most part, the Indians about San Jose are a shadow people.” She would return to these subjects years later in her popular books: California Missions and Their Romances (1938) and Love Stories of Old California (1940).

Possibly because of her earlier experience in helping restore the mission at San Juan Bautista, Cora was a guiding force in producing the Fiesta de las Rosas festivals which began in 1926. Each festival featured an original play based upon an early California theme. The fiestas were held annually until 1933, until the advent of the Great Depression.

One of Cora’s greatest achievements was convincing the city of San Jose to set aside a 5 1/2 acre parcel of land at Naglee and Dana Avenues for a municipal rose garden. San Francisco landscape architect, John McLaren advised on the creation of the garden. Cora’s unique contribution was a collection of old mission roses from all but three of the 21 California mission gardens. Fremont Older died in 1935 and was buried at Woodhills in the same plot as his favorite dogs. (He was later moved). Clara continued on at her beloved home with traditional dinners for important people of the day and often, ex-convicts who had helped build and maintain the estate’s rock walls and gardens. She wrote prolifically until she died at age 93, on September 26, 1968. Her last book was entitled, San Francisco, a Magic City.

The Mid-Peninsula Open Space District acquired the property later on. The house was nearly in ruins and the gardens over-run with weeds. Former newspaper publisher, Mort Levine and his wife Elaine, leased the home from the district and lovingly restored it to its original status. The showplace is a tribute to Fremont and Cora Older and the Levines graciously allow public tours through the auspices of the Open Space District on special occasions.

Keep Our Creeks Clean on Saturday, May 17
The City of Cupertino will host a community creek cleanup on Saturday, May 17, 9 am - 12 pm at Creekside Park, 10455 Miller Avenue, Cupertino. Volunteers and City staff will clean up areas around Calabazas and Regnart creeks. Gloves, trash grabbers and bags will be provided. Volunteers are encouraged to wear sunscreen and dress for safety (wear long sleeves and pants and old shoes, rain boots or equivalent). Free refreshments will be offered. Bring a friend, bring your family, and have fun keeping Cupertino creeks clean! Register online at www.cleanacreek.org or contact the City at 408.777.3354.

Prevent Unintentional Harm to Wildlife
Poisoning pests can cause harm to non-targeted wildlife. Owls and other predators may suffer secondary poisoning from eating rats and other rodents that have consumed certain rat and mice pesticides known as second generation anticoagulants. These poisons pose particular risks because they are retained in animals’ bodies. Limiting their sale and use will significantly reduce secondary poisoning of non-targeted wildlife. When shopping for pest control, seek the least toxic products. Look for shelf signs with the Our Water, Our World (OWOW) logo, which signifies safer choices. Stores participating in the OWOW program include Orchard Supply Hardware, Ace Hardware, Home Depot, Summerwinds and Yamagami’s Nursery.

Water-Wise Gardening
Did you know that over half of our residential water is used on landscapes? Here are some tips for creating a healthy, inviting garden while protecting our water supply:

1. Go With the Low Flow – Use soaker hoses for irrigation, or invest in a drip system that can cut water use by as much as 90%. Consider installing a ‘smart controller’ for your irrigation system that adjusts to changes in water needs. Check regularly for leaks.

2. Irrigate Efficiently – Water in early morning when temperatures are cooler and there is less wind to minimize evaporation. Water less often and more deeply to encourage deeper root systems that can better tolerate dry periods.

3. Get in the Zone - Group plants with similar water needs together to make watering easier and more efficient.

4. Mulch Like Mad – Create a 1” to 3” layer of organic material such as bark, shredded leaves, or grass clippings on top of the soil and enhance mulching with drip irrigation.
Green Gardeners Exercise Caution When Choosing Pesticides

Is your gardener a Green Gardener? Ask your gardener or yard maintenance professionals if they have been trained as Santa Clara Valley Green Gardeners, who use sustainable landscape maintenance practices. Or, consider hiring a Santa Clara Valley Green Gardener. They have received training to:

- Use resources wisely, conserve water, protect the soil, and reduce waste
- Improve the health, appearance and value of landscapes
- Reduce runoff and stormwater pollution from landscape maintenance activities
- Water according to the needs of the season, the plant, the site and the soil conditions. Install and regularly maintain water efficient irrigation systems
- Prune selectively and properly to compliment the natural form and needs of the plant
- Use alternative approaches such as Integrated Pest Management (IPM) techniques, before turning to pesticides and herbicides
- Help protect air quality by using hand-powered equipment or fuel-efficient, low-emission equipment
- Check soil for fertility, texture, and moisture, and use compost and mulch to feed the soils naturally
- Compost plant debris and grass-cycle
- Use local plant varieties that are California natives or those adapted to our Mediterranean climate rather than invasive species.

Visit www.watershedwatch.org for a current listing of Santa Clara Valley certified Green Gardeners and check www.bayareaecogardens.org to find out about Bay Area Eco Gardens.

With all the new spring growth, pests are not far behind. Please make careful choices when purchasing pest control products, or ask your gardener to do so. Garden pesticides are washed away by rain and watering into storm drains where they pollute local creeks and the Bay, and harm fish and other aquatic life.

Save Water: Xeriscape Your Landscape Today

Governor Brown has declared a drought emergency for all of California and called on Californians to reduce water use by 20%. One way to meet this goal is to convert your landscape from a high water use landscape to a low water use landscape – or Xeriscape. Xeriscaping minimizes water use by installing plants that require little water, once established (drought-tolerant plants); grouping plants with similar light and water use together; using efficient irrigation; mulching - which covers the soil and reduces evaporation; retaining waterfall; and by promoting alternative turf.

On January 1, 2014, Santa Clara Valley Water District increased its Landscape Conversion Rebate to $1.00 per square foot. For more information, visit www.valleywater.org or call the Water Conservation Hotline at 408.630.2554.

- Eco News, continued from page 10

5. Count on Compost – Add organic matter like compost to the soil to increase the soil’s ability to absorb and hold water and to slowly release nutrients to keep plants less stressed and less susceptible to pests.

6. Go Native – You will find a wonderful variety of water-wise plants in local nurseries. Look for plants that are native to a Mediterranean climate, or for California natives that grow in dry conditions.

7. Fall into Planting – The best time to plant is in the fall when the weather starts to cool. Winter rains help plants establish deep, healthy root systems before they have to tolerate the summer heat.

8. Lessen the Lawn – Lawns need more water than most other landscaping, so consider reducing or replacing your lawn with water-wise groundcovers, low-maintenance perennials or a porous hardscape. If you plant a lawn, choose drought-resistant varieties such as buffalo grass.

Sunnyvale - Cupertino Adult and Community Education

On Saturday, April 26, 2014, from 11:45 am - 1:45 pm, Sunnyvale-Cupertino Adult and Community Education will be offering a free special one-day class, ESL/Citizenship Interview Preparation, to help prospective citizens prepare for their interview. Volunteers from the community will act as interviewers. At this class there will also be an immigration expert who will talk about the interview process and answer questions. The class will meet in the Professional Learning Center at the Adult Education Center, 591 W. Fremont Avenue, Sunnyvale. Students can register online at www.ace.fuhsd (course code 144000) or by calling 408.522.2700. Students may also register in class.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to help conduct mock citizenship interviews for Sunnyvale-Cupertino Adult and Community Education’s ESL/Citizenship Interview Preparation Class. This is a commitment for one morning only, Saturday, April 26, 2014, 11:15 am - 1:45 pm. Since many prospective citizens are apprehensive about the interview process, this one-day class gives students an opportunity to practice for their citizenship interview in a relaxed and friendly setting. As a volunteer, you will ask prepared questions and dictate prepared sentences, thus simulating an actual interview. Training for volunteers will be done on the morning of the class. If you are interested, please call Linda Brummer at 408.522.2733.
